PROTECT DEMOCRACY IN MICHIGAN

What if we could bridge the divide, reclaim civil discourse, and restore faith in our democratic process? At Michiganders for Civic Resilience (MCR), we believe that together, we can make this vision a reality.

MCR is a community-driven initiative and recognizes the waning public trust in our elections, the rise in political violence and polarization, and a growing divide in our society pose severe threats to our democracy. But we have the power to change that.

Cross-Partisan Collaboration: Paving the Path to a Stronger Democracy

Cross-partisan collaboration is at the core of our approach. A healthy American democracy empowers unity, understanding, and constructive dialogue for effective governance and policy-making that benefit society. Our mission is to empower Michigan residents with the tools necessary to transcend political affiliations, put people first and restore confidence in our electoral system. As citizens, we are responsible for defending our democracy by standing up, speaking out and upholding America's founding principles.

Countering Disinformation: Restoring Civil Discourse

Disinformation is a significant threat to our democracy. It manipulates public opinion and can sway election outcomes. That's why MCR advocates for active citizen engagement, support for trustworthy news sources, fact-checking information, and nurturing respectful disagreement and civil discourse. Together, we can counter disinformation, safeguard our elections and fortify our democracy.

Our Network: United for Change

Guided by the experienced leadership of Tonya Schuitmaker, former Republican Michigan Senate President Pro Tempore, and Christine Greig, former Michigan House Democratic Leader, Michiganders for Civic Resilience is building a network of like-minded individuals and partner organizations to mobilize and address these issues head-on. There are many opportunities to get involved and make a positive difference, including participating in polarization, media literacy and election integrity training, hosting events, mobilizing your networks, and identifying speaking engagements to mobilize others to take action.

Join the Movement: Defend Our Democracy Today

Our democracy is not a given. We must actively protect and strengthen it every single day. As responsible citizens, we must act now and safeguard our democracy. We must protect America's founding principles, restore confidence in U.S. elections, uphold individual rights and ensure that our democracy remains strong and vibrant for future generations.
